SUMMARY

I am a motivated and detail-oriented Computer Science student at Palestine Polytechnic University, with a strong foundation in software development, web design, and problem-solving. I have hands-on experience in front-end development through academic projects and personal practice. I am also a strong communicator and a quick learner, eager to apply my knowledge in a real-world professional setting. I am seeking a field training opportunity where I can contribute to a team, gain practical experience, and further develop my technical and professional skills.
